R. Rycroft Expresses Some Sensible
Ideas on the Needs of Honolulu and the Possibilities.

R. Rycroft, an old resident of the Hawaiian Islands, having arrived here as the bearer of the news of the election of Abraham Lincoln as President of the United States, has not allowed his exile in the Pacific to blind him to the need of modern ideas in the matter of the growth and expansion of the municipality. During his third of a century residence here, he has made frequent trips to his home in England and has visited the Colonies—always a student of the modes and manners of rising cities.

Mr. Rycroft, as every old-timer knows, is a hard headed, practical, successful man of business. He is the last man in Honolulu to indulge in vain and profitless dreams.

Rycroft has an idea for a city park. It is the best idea that has been advanced thus far. It is good, because it is practical and because it solves a number of vexatious problems. While the Board of Health is considering the necessity of condemning all of Kewalo as dangerous and inimical to the public health, Rycroft has conceived a plan for making that district sweet with the perfume of flowers and alive with the gaiety and happiness of children. Rycroft would make Kewalo into a public park.

Honolulu has few parks. It can well afford to invest in a good one, especially if in so doing, it rids itself of a pest hole.

At least, so thinks R. Rycroft, who has given the matter some sound consideration.

"I think," said Mr. Rycroft to a Bulletin reporter last evening, "that steps should be immediately taken, either by the government or by the city of Honolulu as a municipality or as a community, to establish a park that would be worthy the name. No finer site for such a park can be found, than in the district of Kewalo, between Wai-kiki and Kakaako. Here is a beautiful level stretch of practically worthless land that could be converted into a park that would be a god-send to Honolulu. Suppose a tract of 320 acres, one mile in length and a half a mile in width were procured, mauka of the Beach road; suppose this were improved as it could be by the city—what a change it would make for the better! A dredger could be put to work at excavating a lagoon or serpentine that would afford enough earth to fill in the whole tract to a high level.

"The sanitary features of the proposition, alone, are sufficient to warrant the undertaking. The land belongs to two or three large owners and could be procured without great difficulty. As it now is, these owners can not afford to fill in the land as it should be from a sanitary standpoint. I do not consider it at all improbable that a tract of 320 acres could be procured in this vicinity at a very reasonable figure.

"The lagoon would fill with fresh water. There are numerous clear water springs that would afford a plentiful source of fresh water and as a fish breeding place the lagoon could be made a substantial source of revenue.

"Such a park would be of inestimable benefit to the health and well being of the people. It would be easy of access. It is practically in the heart of the city. The Rapid Transit would pass by it on the Queen street extension and the Beach road would skirt it on the seaward side.

"There is now no available spot for the game of baseball. Such a park as I have in mind would not only afford a splendid ball ground, but there would be room for every kind of outdoor sport and pastime. The lagoon would give good facilities for boating and with such accommodations the public would undergo a much needed awakening on the subject of outdoor athletics.

"The soil is very rich, and trees, shrubbery and all landscape embellishments would flourish in a wonderful manner. The land can be procured on better terms now, perhaps, than ever in the future. The recent park facilities of Honolulu ought to make all public spirited people consider the suggestion.

"A genuine, tropical park, luxuriant with the vegetation of this prolific climate, would be a magnificent attraction to visitors and the absence of such a spot in the city is a matter for reproach.

"As a last word on the park question, I want to say that such an improvement in the locality I have mentioned, would be cheap as a sanitary measure, at $500,000."
